We have studied the possible differential distribution of synaptophysin immunoreactivity (SP-IR) in rat hypothalamic and extrahypothalamic magnocellular neurons using a peroxidase-antiperoxidase technique. SP-IR was observed in 87.5% of magnocellular neurons in the paraventricular nucleus (PVN), and 87.5% of magnocellular neurons in the supraoptic nucleus (SON), but less than 10% of magnocellular neurons in other extrahypothalamic nuclei. Neurons in the PVN and SON that were immunonegative for SP-IR in this study, were similar in size and shape to those containing SP-IR, and the majority of the non-immunopositive magnocellular neurons contained non-specific staining. In the supraoptic nucleus, SP-IR was confined to the cytoplasm of magnocellular neurons and was not found in the nucleus or in processes. Using the monoclonal antibody ICS-1, we found that almost 90% of the magnocellular neurons in the PVN and SON did not contain synaptophysin. In the PVN, extrahypothalamic magnocellular neurons that lacked SP 82157476af
